„It's just incredible that flow. That is the main challenge, isn't it? This compromise between these high-speed sections and then the really slow corners as well.“

„Set-up wise it is a challenge, isn't it?“

„It's also interesting from an engineering point of view, it's about the only place in the world where we can see you going into turn 1. Because your up in the distance at that altitude, fantastic sight. But the set-up work down to turn 7 is a very interesting challenge because it's a very specific range of speeds that we have to try and get the car working in. There's a very heavy braking event at the end of that sequence and it puts the car in quite a strange place in terms of the temperatures we arrive there.“

„And what's also been difficult, it's autumn there and the mornings when we are doing all the practice is just so cold. And then racing is in the afternoon and also rain has been an issue in recent years very often. Especially last year it made the race all the more exciting I think.“

Original Sound: Simon Cole, Chief Engineer Trackside, English

„Yeah, your right that is a good point and last year because of the extraordinary weather conditions we had, the amount of rain they had in Austin, we had a fantastic race as a result. A very exciting race from where we were at, very memorable.“

„And we really had to trust our instincts because we had no practice. Please keep your fingers crossed. I really hope that you have an awesome race weekend.“
